week's GAZETTE I was informed by letter from an advocate of the puzzle that he should altempt to vimilicate it therein by diagrams and explanations. He appeared to be positive of succeeding, and I hoped he would try, because the illagrams would aid thereafter in exploding the puzzle. But seeing that you have found an ing" in the puzzle, and through it have let in a flood of light upon the subject, 1 only wish to aid that honest figures exhibit the following results:

1st. The paper 8x8 Inches, when cut for consist of 4 pieces: 2 measuring exactly 8 inches on one side, 3 inches on another, and about 8 1-2 inches on the other—they being 3 sided. The other 2 measuring exectly 5 inches, on one side, 5 luclies on another side, and 3 Inches ou another side. and about 5 1-2 inches on the other-they histor 4 sided.

2d. These four pieces, if the outside edges are placed fully out to 5x13 inches, will show an oblique opening, as stated in the last GAZETTE, exactly the of an Inch. wide in its centre, three inches measuring square across, and from thence tapering to a point at each of two outside cerners: this opening is exactly equal to one square

3rd. The width of each triangular piece at 5 inches from their polits, where the 3 inch seams are in the 5al3 form, is only 1 and I inches; making the entire width at those two places only 41 inches; therefore there is a loss or lack of f of a square luch between those two places, and a further loss or lack of 5 eighths of a square inch between that section and the two ends-making exactly one square luch in all.

4th. To prove the foregoing more thoroughly let us try the good old "Single Rule of Three' on the triangular pleces. If in going 8 inches (64 one eighths) from the points we gain 3 inches, (24 one eightirs) how much will we gain by going 5 Inches, (40 one eighths)? Answor: As 64 is to 24 so is 40 to 15-15 eighths equals I inch ami . And again; If in going 64 eighths from the 8 luch ends we lose 24 eighths, how much would we lose in going 24 eighths: Answer: As 64 is to 24 so is 24 to 9--eighths equals I inch and 1. This proves conclusively, by honest figures, that at the points named the triangular pieces have lost 1 and 4 inches from the 3 inches, and that but 1 and I lnehes remains. 5th. If the proposition had been, to so cut and change an obloug square 5x13 inches (65 square lucios) as to make a perfect square 8x8 inches, (64 square inches) it would have been much more illflicult to flud ont and determine exactly where the 1 square inch in excess of 64 inches had gone to than it is to solve the first given case; because there would be but 1-13th of an Inch la excess of 8 Inches in any of small as to be almost imperceptible to the keenest eye. The excess would be 1-13th of an inch for 8 inches on one side, and 1 13th of an inch for 5 inches on another side-making axactly one square inch. Is there any puzzle left about this mat-

At the conference of the Republican committee at Quiney, last Monday, it was ate two ltenresenta from Weymouth and one from Quincy, for the coming election. Among the candidates "talked of" we learn that William B. Worster, Esq. is a favorite at Quincy, while in Weymouth the renomination o the Representatives of last year is agitated. A number of gentlemen who believe in rotation, have urged the nomination of Sam'l W. Reed, Esq., of the Landing, and his name will no doubt be presented at the caucus this evening. 11. H. In order to secure a determination of proper omndaries, a petition is to be sent in to he Board of County Commislaners, praylug the Board to view the highway, and locate the west boundary on the line of the wall enclosing the Weston estate. hence in a straight course to liroad street. We learn from Mr. John O. Foye that in the original location of the westerly bounds a stone post at the north end of his front fence was taken as an initial point, which was an error, as the true line projected easterly from the post a few leet. This change in his front line would bring it on line with the wall below. From the west boundary the Commissioners will be requested to lix tire width of the street at sixty feet, which will give several of the abottors on the east side an extension of the purpose of making 5x13 luches, will their front yanis, and aise cut into the bank in front of the Plerce estate.

The "Wee sma' hours" had arrived when supper was autonoced, and a merry throng illed with sumptnously spread tables, and a folly time was spent in discussing the ed ibles. The supper finished, The company returned to the hall below and were som engaged in dancing, which was contluned mutil early morn. Although this ball was not so profitable as the former, the society ietter! some lifty dollars above all the exmirrium their soleinn dirges through the naked branches which have strewn the earth with their dying foliage.

"Inspiration bids us look upon the evanescent glories of autuma as an illustration of our earthly being. Every-blooming spring has been followed by decay, and has been a monition to man ever since the Thvine word seatened the race, "From dist thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." How suggestive evry tabilise change from youth to age. Place the photographs side by sidr, and we have the green leaf of spring beside the seared leaf of automa. Every pain and sense of weatiness that comes upon the body, the change of the countenance from the glow of health to the pallor of sickness, are typined in the sickly and variegated horse which the leaves assume when they fade and life. Countless multitudes of our race have passed away like leaves of the forest, millions of whom we have never known or heard of. A large proportion of them have had a better existence than the leaf; others have tarried a lattle longer, as if in some more sequestered apot, with greater strength to be the storing to the strength of the strongest form, and all fike automin leaves passed away under the tootsteps of other generations not knowing that they have had an existence. So will it be with us, for 'We are strangers and sojourners on the earth, as all our fathers were."

"Since we commenced the journey, how many have fallen from our ranks—members of the family, of the school and church; how memories come from the green graveyard. Some, like the bods, were nipped by the untinnely blast; others in youth, some in age. Death, as a successful archer, has Nathaniel Rogers, is making preparations of the school and church; how mormones come from the greek graveyard. Some, like the buds, were nipped by the untimely blast; others in youth, some in age. Death, as a successful archer, has been thimming our ranks, bringing alike the head of the family and the infant in the cradle to the grave. In mountiful cadences, like wintry winds murning through the leaflest trees, we have chanted the requient of our fallen ones. Thus the forest, the tample of nature, becomes the statictury of thought had mechanical. Some part of life will be in the stirring field of activity; but here beneath the trees, in calm; and serious thought; we should consider a subject which claims our laterest; and when we have thought for enough and long enough it will not produce gloom as some might suppose. The question is, whither am I going? where will be my turner home? So serious a subject may impress the mind with seriousness, and the sond will receive greater satisfaction and a richer joy than thought-lessness and levity can give."

The Randolph delegates showed considerable dissatisfaction at the nomination by the committee of Thomas J. Hill, ami Judge Tower, of Randolph, made a few effectual remarks if they bail been made sooner, in connection with the practice of appointing a committee, instead of the delegations from towns nominating the district committee. The remarks of Judge Tower created quite a scene in the convention. There were motions and amendments without number, and with a view to meet the objections of the Randolph delegates, but all falled and the report of the committee was intopted. powering desire to get loose from the ground and follow the rushing train .-The dust from newly ballasted portions of the track and the chips and leaves rose up flercely against the force of gravitation and whirled and gyrated like vapory clouds in a tempest. A thin line of smoke stretched interminably in the distance. The impetus of the train increased; the vehemence with which the train rushed forward ereated a vacuum that apparently took nature some seconds to overcome, and the spirits of the passengers were exhilerated by the unprecedented speed at which they moved through space. Finally a sharp twist that sent the standing passengers over to the right, and then another that sent them in the other direction, and the yard of Amherstburg Station was reached.

Hurrah! One hundred and eleven miles in one hundred and nine minutes! The fastest time in America-beating by three minutes the run of Vanderbilt special train.

IN A SALT MINE.

The Commercial Bulletin in an interesting article last week, referring to a visit to the interior of a salt infine in Europe, says that many of the females of the miners families seldom visit the earth, and that one of them had not heen to the surface of the earth for tifteen years, while her husband had not been up for eighteen years! The daughters had been up several times. however, and what was more extraordimary they had been at least a mile away from the month of the minel They inparted this piece of information as if they wished us to understand that a eiremustance so extraordinary was worthy of particular mention.

As a rule they feell homesick when ever they reach the surface and gaze round them. The world becomes too vast for them; the range of vision i too large. A view which is bounded on ly by the horizon is something too im meuse for them. And they have m eye for natural scenery. The gicer tields, the blue sky, the umbrageous forests, the running streams seem to have little chaim for them. But this may be due to the fact that they have been necustomed to gazing upon sights far more gargeous than the mind can conceive. They take no interest in affuirs above ground.

Although it was never intended that the miners and their families should live in the mine, they have become so incensioned to the underground life that they prefer it to an existence overhead. This village in the mine is not more than one humbred and fifty years old. It was started by did pjerde Opthiser the hostlers; the men who look after the horses being obliged to stay in the mine about a week. They found it lonesome down here, and by and by induced their wives to come down and prepare their meals. Once down the women liked to stay here just as well as above ground. There was plenty of light, the air was as pure as above ground, and they missed nothing by living in the mine. Thus the village was started, and it has grown until now the number of inhabitants is something over tive hundred. Of course many of the sons go up and live in the world when they grow to manhood, and many of the girls marry Into families above ground.

THE CONDUCTOR'S MISTARE.

On the train there was a mournful party, eleven poor idiots, who were in tharge of keepers, taking them to the asylum. In the same car, and just back of these poor crentures, was unother party, which presented a startling contrast to this scene of wretchedness. A bridal party, the very embodiment of happiness; he, tender and brave; she trusting and heautiful. Life was rosecolored and glit-edged to them, their days were gold and their nights were "Tired, ducky?" "No, deary." 1. But you must be, sweety." "Oh no, indeed, 1 ain't, lovey." "But you do look so tired, durly."

"Oh, indeed I'm not so very tired lovey." "Lean your head on my shoulder Wessagusset House, birdle." At one station the wretched party had to change cars. The keepers pointed them out and the conductor checked them off as, grinning and chattering. they filed out of their seats. They emptied the seats back to the white klds and orange blossoms. The conductor patted the groom on the shoulder. and looked inquiringly at the keeper: " Don't these go, too?" he asked.

And the calm ceased, and immed ately there arose a great storm.

OLIVER P. MOSTON. WASHINGTON, Nov. 1st.
The telegraph hrings us to-night the long apprehended news that the nation has bean called upon to mourn the loss of one of its most treated defenders, and must honored statesmen: that the long endured sufferings of a great Senator have been brought to a close, and that death has called him for his own. At this moment of national mourning, when a whole people are confronted with the cruel fact of an almost irreparable loss; when a great and political party lias lost one of ils greatest eaders; when a stricken family are en countering the first agonles of separation, all political fends and partisan hatreds are forgotten in the humanity of the public look, and justice may, if ever, be done

P. Monrox.
Without the data of ready proof I believe I had the duty of reporting for the Gazetfe at the time the last public appearance of the dead Senator. It was pas midnight, on the morning on the passage of the Electoral Commission Bill in the Senate, and from a corner in the crowled rallery I looked down upon a fatigued and somnolent assemblage, the wakeful portion of whom were granped about the chair of a pale and exhausted Senator, as he uttered a final appeal for the Constitution in its purity. A moment later, and physical pain had mastered the tattering nind, and he sank back in the chair, that has hardly since and shall never again support lds Titanle frame.

Of the early life of Mr. Morton there is scarcely more to be said than of the averago selfioade American. Born in Wayne county, Indiana, August, 1823, he was left an orphan at an early age; received a common school education; served at the trade of a hatter, which proving uncongenial he cutered college, and without graduating entered mon the study of the law and was admitted to the bar in 1816, and served a term as Judge of Circuit Court. An early democrat, he abandoned that party and alded in forming the Republican party in the West, and was a defeated randidate for Governor of Indlana in the Fremont camnaign of 1856.

The bitterly contested campaign of 1860, which resulted in the trimph of Mr. Lincoln and the anti-slavery party, placed Mr. Morton in the office of Lieutenant Governor of Indiana, and by the election of Governor Henry S. Lane, to the Senate, la his promotion to the gubernatorial chair. Gov. Morton visited Washington and assured the Government of the vigorous surport of Indiana, in any aggressive measares it saw lit to adopt. In repress to the President's proclamation for six thousand men from Indiana, thanks to the personal energy of Governor Morton, forty thousand responded, and the excess were, at the expense of the state, armed, drilled and equipped, and retained for the further anpreheuted amargancy, which as is well known, was not long to coming. It is further a matter of bistory, that for the first two years of the war Governor Morton was to all intents and purposes Governor of Kentucky. His troops paroled the border countles; his spies watched the movements of suspected secessionists in the state, and through his watchfulness the rebel camp at Bowling Green was broken up, and by Indiana troops. Zollicoffer was defeated and slain at Mill Spring, and Kentucky saved from open rebellion. The Louisville Journal, now edited by

The returns are as folon his own responsibility borrowed sever- lows: al millions of dollars, on behalf of the state, which, to prevent passing through the hauds of the democratic auditor and treasurer, he disbursed upon his own Conant, 30, checks, and managed from his own office. His struggle with the "Kulghta of the Goblen Circle," their expusure and the rescue of the state from lidamy and aunrelly, is historical. In common with Governors Andrew of Missachusetts, Curun of Pennsylvania, Fenton of New York, and Hrough of Ohlo, he formed one of that glorious and patriotle band of "War Governors" by whose counsel the masterly plans and purposes of the President were Inaugurated, and by whose energy and activity they were carried out to a final and mignificent success. In 1861 he was reelected by a majority of 22,000 votes, and continuing the untiring labor of his life without rest or reprieve, what wonder that In the summer of 1865, when the war ended and the moment of relaxation came, the cvll results of overwork should have of Rev. With this impried resume of his life and tabors. I have left myself little room for a emisideration of his character. From a limited personal acquaintance, but several years of careful observation, I can but add to the universal testimony that assigns him an inmored place among the statesmen and undeviating patriots of the nation. To stern and inlexible justice he united sincere and cordial friendship, and even a greater gentleness than could be expected from one carrying about endless physical pain. Always cool, self-controlled and patient, he entered upon the advocacy plysical pain. Always cool, self-controlled and patient, he entered upon the advocacy of a public measure only when satisfied of the instice and the equity of his position, and abandoned it only with success. He was certainly the boliest and most unfinching politicians of his day and generatian, and with the exception of Mr. Raudall in the House, neither party has his equal in this respect in public life. The republican party has lost a leader whose place h will be difficult at this juncture to fill, and whose mantle will fall to the ground far the want of a wearer whom it may fit; the freedman has lost a champion whose irreparable loss can hardly be calculated; the nation has not with the loss of a great statesman, the senate a brilliant fater; the nation has need with the loss of a great statesman, the senate a brilliant mind, and the republic a faithful servant. Pesterrly will accord him the meet of justice, which an era of gush and settlineutality can hardly be expected to render.

TOWN AND VICINITY.

Election day was attended with no special excitement, less than half of the vote of this town being policd. Teams were run to the Town Hall at short lutervals during the time of the polls being kept open, but notwithstanding the conveyance gratultously offered, a thousand or more of the voters of Weymonth did not apparently have sufficient interest in the result to east their votes for the numbrees of either party. The friends of the different candidates for representatives were actively engaged during the day in efforts to secure the success of their favority tickets, and the vote of the District was a close one, the phirality of the elected candidates being a little less than last year, while there was a slight gain on the ticket of the probibltory party. The polls were closed in Weymonth at 2 P. M., and about 3 1-2 o'clock the announcement of the ballot was made by John W. Hartlett, Esq., of the Board of : electmen, as follows:

THE FLAG OF THE PROPRET.

Since the commencement of the war between Russla and Turkey, the world has several times been slartled by the announcement that the "Flag of the the streets of Stanthout. Such an event. crusade in which all true Mussulmans would be bound to take an active part, and to fight against Christianity in every part of the world. This language is of course little lift now and then to help him on metaphorical; but it is easy to conceive. loward the New Jerusalem. " by the light of very recent history, that some such catastrophe might take place, as the displaying of this terrible symbol would raise a frenzy of familieism in the breasts of the Mahammedan race

Ishum by an adjuration from the Koran that the sword is the solitary emblem and instrument of faith, independence, and patriotism; that armies, not prosts. ninke converts; and that sharpened steel is the "true key to heaven or hell." Upon that fearful ensign are inserted the words which are written at Meeca itself—namely, "All who draw It [the sword] will be rewarded with temporal advantages; every drop shed of their blood, every peril and hardship endured by them, will be registered on high as more meritorious than either fasting or praying. If they fall in battle, their sins will be at once ldotted out, and they will be transported to Paradise, there to revel in eternal pleasures in the arms of black-eved houris. But for the first heaven are reserved those of the Faithful who die within sight of the Green. Flag of the Prophet." Then followed the terrible and all-significant words, the fearful warcry against God and man: "Then may no maa give or expect mercy!" This is the outburst of barbarism with which the world is threatened in this year of grace 1877; and the reader cannot do otherwise than mark the cunulug nature of the portentous words inscribed on the Prophet's banner.

The unfurling of the banner would be performed with great religious ceremony, and in the presence of the Com mander of the Faithful, who is himself supposed to carry it at the hend of the arary; while a fearful curse would be called down upon the head of every Mohammedan who enpable of bearing arms, fuiled to rally round it.

The stamlard liself is not a very handsome one, and is surpassed both in value and appearance by many of the bunners which belong to the various benefit societies and other untual assoclations of men in this country. It is of green silk, with a large crescent on the top of the staff, from which is suspended a long plumo of horse-halr (said to have been the tall of the Prophet's favorite Arab steed), while the broad folds of the dag exhibit the crescent and the quotations from the Koran already mentloned.

The Flag of the Prophet is kept in the mosque of St. Sophin at Censtantinople, and is in the custody of the Sheik-ul-Islam, or Mohammedan chiefpriest, where all well-wishers of humanity may sincerely trust it will ever remain. [Chambers' Journal.

HETSEY'S TRAMP.

He was a down-hearted, discouraged rheumatic, walnot-colored knob off drawer of the old Freedman's Bureau His eyes had a peculiarly pleading look especially the white part. He laid one tlat-boat upon the porch, then rested nwhile, and dragged the other one up

For obvious reasons, Betsey couldn't open the screen door successfully, si they exchanged opinions on this checkered world through the net work. He put his tough, tawny, trembling hand across his sail African bosom, dropped his troubled glance on the cross timbers of his rafts, and asked in sepulchra tones for "old clo'es."

He did not particularize as to gender person, number and case, so Betsey sopped up her bring tears on the corne of her gingham apcou, whiel her must heavenward, and brought out from th kitchen closet a tolerable felt skirt, piar of sleeve-clastics, an odd shirt-star and a work salt-and-pepper waistcoat.

the breasts of the Mohammedanc race all over the globe.

The origin of the insignia is a curricus one one. Mohammed guzing out upon a vast prospect of flelds, said: "Nature is green, and green shall be my emblem, for it is everlasting and universal." In course of time, however, it lost that homeent significance; and his visions, the great dreamer saw the Green Flag doating as a sign that all true believers should take up their arms and march against the Inflidel; in fact the green turban was the sacred headdress of the pflgrine Islamife who had gone to Mecca; and hence the scancity of this formidable standard.

"I dld," replied the doctor. "Well?"

"I called accordingly, and did hear something to my advantage."
"What?" Tom looked very much surprised and disappointed at the same time. "And did you not write me a similar one last April?" "I am above such cold-blooded cruelty, sir," said the doctor, in a tone that marked his real feelings. "The person who could do such a thing must have something bad about his character, and I want nothing to do with him, sir."

Top was, after all, the real April fool; and so great was his alsappointment and elingrin that never afterward was he known to send an April fool letter, or play a trick on one of his friends.

ECHOES FROM THE CAPITAL OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

The World of Politics .- The English Misslon and the Dolbar of our Dobbles .-Har a new Souther clinches his wegn-

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. "The season" is pressing forward at the winler empital with fluctuating success. To be sure the representatives of the peo-ple are indulging themselves and the eategers with occasional dinner-parties; it is true they have varied the monotony of lucipient legislation with nn excursion to the Pamlieo races where they dropped the first Installment of their salaries, and made glad the heart of needy turlites who har en't liltherto looked upon Congressmen as a legitimate prey; but then statesmen are not alone want to stake their superlinous ducats on the losing horse, and one must enjoy themselves, you know, even when burdened with the cares of a nation. In political respects we are certainly existing nder a severely complex state of affairs Between the administration policy; the disaffected wing of republicanism; the conservative section of the opposition, and the more radical demacracy, it would juiz-zle the proverbial brain of a Philadelphia harrister to determine the precise situation or to classify a member of the 45th Con gress. The joke of the whole affair lies in the fact that none of them care to be classlifed, the distluctions between the several ellages being so indefinitely and delicately thin that it is not really worth mention

I ran across a Massachusetts member the ether evening-(don't know that there is particular need of more definitely spec-Ifying him,) and naturally inquired how he construed the elections. "Well," said he, "it has been one of those peculiar events that appears to satisfy everybody. The administration looks upon Massachusetts and Wisconsin and Minnesota as having approved its policy and attributes the defeat of the state tieket in New York to Mr. Conkling's defection. The apponents to the President's party, on the other hard, claim the gains in Connecticut and Nev York and Kansas to their own efforts and the losses in the south to the action of the President in dishanding the party in that section. As for the Democrats, they have earried the south unanimously; galned Pennsylvania, retained New York and New dersey, and reduced the majorities all around; so you see all parties are satisfied, and what more would you nsk? As for myseif," he added, "I look upon the result as a decided republican gain In the North, and nu unequivocal and perhans inevitable disaster in the south. consider the partieular polley I have always maintained in public life to have been established in the one case and demoustrated in the other. So you see I am satisfied." And with this exceedingly divlomatic explanation I had to be satisfied in The principal event of the week has been the passage of the Bland silver bili In the House and the confirmation of Mr. John Weish, as

As far as the latter event is concerned the country may congratulate itself upon the entrance into miblie life of a gentleman of undoubted probity, and in whom there is no particular guile. To be sure be has had no experience in diplomacy and is doubtless ignorant of the first principles of statescraft and the state's needs, for that matter. But we have passed that practicul period when adaptability was considered a prerequisite to political appointment, and so long as we send prize-lighters and professional gamblers to Congress and State Senates, there seems no particular reason why a respectable merchant, whose only objective quality is integrity and inexperience, should not represent a mercantile nation at a foreign court. We have indeed the shiplug example of Abbott Lawrence, who filled much the same posltion in life as Mr. Welsh, transplanted from a factory to the Court of St. James, and filling both positions with honor to himself and his country. Compared with plomatic ability of Mr. Pierrepont, the finesse of Gen. Schenck, the turgidity of Reverdy Johnson, and the frigidity of Mr. Adams; but not withstanding his lack of these advantages he will doubtless supply other and more practical essentials to the position he is called upon to fill. Personally Mr. Welsh is tall and slender, something over seventy years of age; but a profuse gray mustache and elaborate side whiskers, In conjunction with a pair of large and decidedly blue eyes, give hitu an appearance of one much younger. In business pursult he is, perhaps, more of a capitalist than merchant. Although connected with a Phlladelphla firm of dry goods merchants, he has been for many years. President of the Board of Trade for that elty; a director of several banks, and at one time President of the Northern Pennsylvania Rallroad, a position that Don Conneron resigned to assume the portofollo of War under Grant. He is particularly known as the President of the Board of Finance of the Centennial Exhibition, and to whose labors is due the credit of its brilllaat success. In polities he has been ever an uncompromising Republican, without being identified with any clique or section. The principal interest in connection with his monination has been his election in the place of Gen. Cameron. who was named by the entire State delegation, at the President's request. The passage by the House of ilallar was good enough for its from 1700 to 1874: why should its restoration bring upon us those finnaciai perils wideh its oppoits those flumicial perils which its opponents are frightening us with, at the risk of our credulity? Its restoration not only enables the government to repay its indeficiences in the coin in which it was contracted, but it renders resumption in 1879 pees slibe, which without such restoration would have lagen simply inachievable. And not only is resumption at the specified date practicable, but there exists no earthly reason why speede payments should not be resumed almost immediately. If you will turn back to my letters of last year on this subject, you may easily understand why thrin mark to my jetters or last year on this subject, you may easily understand why this legislation has been so long delayed, and the cause of the grounderful opposition it has encountered. Was favored with a full house at his lec-ture in the P. Is. U. Course last Monday evening. His discourse was entitled "In-cidents and Hattle Scenes of the Rehelcaterias and matter Scenes of the Rener-lion" and wag a very pleasant one indeed, After a very agreeable Introduction to his theme the speaker branched out apon the various causes and results of many notable conflicts, pleturing in vivid terms everal battles, including those of Gettys ong and Little Round Top, and describ-ing many lamorous incidents connected herewith. Among the many statements hade by the speaker was one to the effect made by the speaker was one to the effect that, notwithstanding reports to the contrary, the Massachusetts ith was not the only regiment which suffered an attack from the Baltimore mob—that under the command of Col. Davis, which followed the 6th by a few days, being the exception. He also went on to say that while the Army of the Patomac might have rendered some excellent service while it lay still, yet it was necessary that it should remain where it was, as it was only waiting for where it was, as it was only waiting for the right moment when it should move— all innexpected—and strike many a severe and unbooked for blow. The General thought that about as gross a mistake as Jell Davis made in all his arity appointments, was that of placing Gen. Hood in command when Gen. Joe Johnston resigned. The news of this change was received in the Union camp with many a joyful face, for the siddlers knew full well that their adversary would then be more easily defeated.

The speaker told one very amusing locident, which we cannot retrain from presenting. He (Kilpatrick) had never seen The General thought that about as gros

As the work of destruction graw more and more intense. Sherman exclaimed in a most excited manner, "I tell you, Hooker, I've made a complete missiake. This fellow's troops should be on the left and that one's on the right, (giving the name of two of ids best officers,) and they are mither of them on the field." "Why me, you have made no mistake at all; here they all they for the stage. NORTH WEYMOUTH.

A Narrow Escape. A few days since, as Mr. A. T. Cushing and William Collier were returning home from South Weymouth, where they were from South Weymonth, where they were working at stone business, they stopped at East Weymouth, and took in Mrs. A. T. Cushing and Mrs. Peterson, who had been there spending the day. The evening was very dark, and just before reaching East street, near the Rallroad crossing, they came in collision with a heavy wagon driven by Thomas Bickuell, breaking down the off torward wheel of Mr. Cushing's the oil torward wheel of Mr. Cushing's wagon, letting the axle to the ground, and throwing Mr. Cushing Mr. Collier and Mrs. Cushing out. Mrs. Peterson crawled out the best she could, and fortunately the horse stood still, otherwise Mrs. Cushing, as well as Mrs. Peterson, would probably have been badly hart, Il not killed. Mrs. Cushing's clothes caught on some part of the wagon, holding her head down to the ground in a very dangerous position until extricated by parties who cause to the rescue. Mrs. C. was quite scrionisty hart, but the others escaped with only a tew slight braises. The wheel was broken into spinites and hop do the tree being it to take home. Mr. Alexis Forsyth soun supplied a new wheel and noale the carriage as good as new.

anything that he does not earn. Many get more than they are entitled to, but it does not follow as n matter of right.

The real feet is, that instead of the world owing any man a living, every man owes something to the world, meaning by that, the community in which he dwells.— He owes for the protection he enjoys, for the enjoyment he receives and for the help he has.— All of these he appropriates freely, and often without acknowledgment; and he owes something in return for them.—They are not his simply that he may be benefited thereby; but became he is a member of the community and shares he all the advantages that relation gives, under the always implied obligation, that he der the always implied obligation, that h does his share of the work necessary to sustain that organization. It is no on-sided bargain in which all is receiving an no giving, but one of mutual rights and no giving, but one of unitual rights and obligations, where all are debtors and all are creditors, and where the rule 1s, that the more one gives the more he has in return, for the very act of giring enlarges his capacity for receiving.

It follows, then, that one of the plain duties of the hour to every temperance man, and every man should be such by virtue of this common bond of community interest, comes in the form of self-deal-ty interest, comes in the form of self-deni-al, and in direct opposition to selfishness. A man should be personally a temperance man in payment of the debt he oves to his health, for the good he gets from the community in return for the exertions he makes towards it in behalf of the cause, and its henelicial results afford him, but he should go further than this, for all these come in the way of self gratilication; he should be willing to deny himself, to make some sacritice for the good of others. Although this is not the end sought, there is nothing that gives such a gennine, unalloyed pleasure, as the feeling that we have done something on another's behalf at some cost, in money, lator, or feeling, to ourselves; and nothing so draws out our affection and regard for another, as the fact that we helped him at our own expense, and nothing places him in sa good a position for further influence from us, as this same fact when he becomes aware of it.

And so, since It is apparent to any or And so, since it is apparent to any one that our community stands in great need of temperance work, liquor shops, wholesale and retail, opening in our midst on every side, and many of our neighbars, whose appartites are strong, and whose inclination or both together, are not sufficient to restrain those appetites, are drawn in and ruined, not only in themselves, but also in their families, who have a claim upon our sympathy and protection, it follows that we should be prepared, as members of the cummunity, to do many things that will come us something, in order to put an end to cannot open our eyes without sering those who perhaps, are as deserving as ourselves standing in urgent need of the same bene-lits; we should be willing, and not only be willing but should bestir ourselves to sacriflee our case, cur time, our money, one and all if necessary, to help them.

Nor is it a loopeless task that is thus enjoined upon us. Were this so we might perhaps have reasonable excuse for delay or non doing, but we have holps and abundant helps, all about us. We have the approval and the urging of our own better natures; we have the hearty sympathy and active cooperation of all the best members of our community; we have the cordial and mighty aid of the christian wo met among us, and their prayers as well willing but should bestir ourselves to sacmen among us, and their prayers as well as those of the children, both of whom are such great sufferers from the drink traffic, and last and greatest of all, we have the promise of our God behind us.— Could we ask more?

Further than this we have abundant reason for hope in our undertaking, from the many to whom we can point who have been saved from the curse by the unccas-

If there is one precept, generally recognized, and extensively followed, which more than any other tends to unsettle and denoralize the moral sense of the community, it is this: *The world owes me a living and I am outfiled to it." And we hear it from the lip of all the idle, which less good-for-nothings, that infect our downs and citles, wha are utiling to do nothing for themselves, but are perfectly willing that others, who are unider no possible obligation to do so, should pay the debt which they say the world owes them. With some, to have been left in such circumstances, and with such a charge, would have completely unnerved them, but not so with Mrs. Dugey. Her spirit was undamined; she was self-reliant and imiustrious; she loved her children; she could endure all and suffer all for them. See tolled on hits and suffer all for them. Fractions again. As an example of what they know down As an example of what they know down learn that about substraction of fractions a genleman related to us the other day some of his experience when in that section. Among other equally interesting incidents he stated that on one occasion he and his wife were in Vermont, and being obliged to put up somewhere for the night, and not knowing any one in particular, he pulled up at a public house and got accommodation such as it was. In the morning —which seemed to be very long in coming—he asked for his bill, and settled it; but the lamilady had neglected to charge for three quarts of oats which his borse had used, and calling her attention to this he asked how much that would be. She studied over it for sometime, and at length sail that they charged is cents a quart for oats. "Then," said the gentleman, "that will be 12 cents for three," "Yes sir, that his just it," and he paid her, not a fraction more.

Fire.

On Saturday foremon the dwelling house of David Thayer, on West street, was burned almost to the ground. The ell portion, if that counts anything, was savel. The Butcher llay engine turned ont promptly at the alarm, but the distance from the scene of the lire was so great that considerable valuable time was lost before the engine effected after it arrived, that the lenuse might have been partially saved. The furniture was all savel but whether it can be used in the future for the service seeing conducted by Rev. Mr. Frary, of the Union Church, where the family were attendants.

Some weeks ago we regarded it as being our duty to call attention to, and arge the great need there was for having a course of lectures, not only as a means of general instruction, but also as consistent with the educational character of this part of the town. We are happy that this appeal has now been taken up, and by the Rev. E. M. Taylor. He is just the man to put such a thing through. We have now before us an aumountement of a course of popular lectures, which are to be delivered in the Methodist church, and by such wen as Rev. W. L. Phillips, of Fall River, Rev. as Rev. W. L. You must acknowledge that this would be ruinous unless we had positive evidence deel suggest any thought at all, in a hasty and summary manner; but not so those who have been cognizant of the whole who have been cognizant of the whole from its inception on to its sail ending. There are those to whom life seems to be given as a trial, a constant conflict. It is a hard fight from the cradle on to the grave; up-hill work, foll all the way and at the last it seems as if they had only just kept their ground. So it was in this case. About 10 years ago Mrs. Dugey moved from Canada into this town, and just previous to her doing so, her husband died, leaving her with a family of live children, the youngest of whom was only 3 years that it will core. By her little sinter's side,
Lay sweet Lizzie down to rest—
Fold her little snow-white hands
Gently o'er her throbless breast,
Lay her in her tiny clothes: Close the weary cyclids now,
O! how calmly Lizzie sleeps
Since death has kissed her baby brow, Her justling words will never greet. Her sorrowing mother's ear again; And many a bitter teat will bathe. Each fond memento all in vain. The half-worn shoes-the broken tuys, Will carefully be laid aside;
And with them, too, the little bed
On which her loved and lost one died.

Dear little Lizzie; all that knew The lovely child can ne'er forget Her winning voice and laughing eyes; They linger in my memory yet. And thus it is the fairest flowers
That deck the gardens of our love,
Are early called by death, to shed
Their fragrance at the home above. Yet parents, murmur not, thon'st laid Her in the ground but for awhile, Beyond its portals, Lizzie waits
Tu greet thee with an angel's smile.

MRS. RUINES.

In East Itraintree, Nov. Sth, Mrs. ELLEN Duer, aged 43 years.

At last, O my mother, thou sleepest;
At last thy poor heart is still,
No longer my mother thou keepert,
A watch in this world of ill;
And now she sleeps the long, long sleep.
The lonely turf conceals a star,
Whose dawning brightness seemed to sweep
Life's fair horlzun wide and far.
Her worth and intellectual power,
Proved how she loved sweet virtue's ways;
Her friendship, true in darkest hour,
Cheered with kind triends like'a closing days.
Thou hast gone from us, dear mother,
And we'll see thy face no mare;
But thy memory fond we'll cherish,
in our hearts for evernore.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When he day of life has fled,
Then in heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.
To muse upon the future, wondering where
On tide of hime, our bark is drifting,
And wondering whether we sail in weather fair.
Or whether 'its foul and the winds are shifting;
And now she rests in her greatnesss and sweetness,
No more she shall seem at strife. HOUSEKEEPERS ASK YOUR GROCER FOR THE KITCHEN AND HAND

A NEW USE FOR GUM-ARABIC.

A country doctor in Germany writes that he always carries with him on his rounds "lots of powered gnm-arabic for all wounds not healing by the first intention, or where there is loss of substance, or for deep burns, ulcers," etc. The whole affected surface is covered with the dry powder, a compress saturated with water, then a dry compress. and then a bandadge applied. It is soothing and absorbs all secretions, forming a bland, unucilaginous mass, which comes off easily, without adhering. He claims that it is a preventive of septiciemia.

CARBOLIC ACID IN DIABRIMEA. Dr. J. W. Palmer, of Ohio, writes to the Philadelphia Reporter as follows:-Recently I have employed carbolic acid in the treatment of diarrhea, both neute and chrouic form of the disease, with signal success. It is given in one or two drop doses, largely diluted with water, from two to four hours apart .-It controls pain, and corrects the fetor of the dischurges.

THE COLUBADO GIANT.

No little excitement has been created hy the announcement that a wonderful discovery had been made about twentyfive miles southwest of I'neblo or about sixty miles from Colorado Springs, Col. Mr. Conant, who has prospected in that locality in days past, and his but recently sent to the Suffolk (N. Y.) county fair several interesting petrifactions, among which was a very perfect specimen of a tish and a turtle; while taking his lunch about half way up the slie of one of the immense foot hills, discovered near hlm, and projecting about three luches from the surface, course led him to dig about it, and to his great surprise he unearthed in a few moments what appeared to be a petri-tinued until the entire body of a giant in stone was unearthed; to all appearance the body of a human being; the two crack clubs were going to play, but head and upper portion being only about two feet below the surface. He was obliged to go back seven miles to procure timber stont enough to pry it from its bed. In doing this, under the great excitement of the moment, the image was broken diagonally across the breast from the right shoulder to a little below the left. In all respects the image is perfect from top to toe, and the broken portion so carefully replaced Mr. Conant transported the giant to Pueblo, where it lay in state two days bloom. It shall does be to they stimulate the digestive organs and promote vigorous health.

Ayen's Pills have been known for more than a quarter of a century, and have obtained a world-wide reputation for their virtues. They correct diseased action in the several assimilative organs of the body, and are m composed that obstructions within their range can rarely withstand or evade them. Not only do they grand or evade them. Not only do they cure the every-day mambaints of every-body, but also formidable and dangerous diseases that have halled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are, at the same time, the safest and best physic for children. By their aperion action they gripe much less than the common appropriates, and never than the common purgotives, and never give pain when the bowels are not inflamed. They reach the vital fountains of the blood.

from the elements of weakness.

Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither catometer nor any deleterious dring, these PHIs may be taken with satety by anybody. Their sugar-enating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take; while being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Here is a story llinstrative of the fact that tears are a powerful weapon in the hands of a matrimonially luclined modern Nlobe:

There was a Southern merchant, a handsome, dashing fellow, who aston-Ished all his relatives a few years ago by marrying a very plain girl, the sister of his business partner. The marriage has turned out reasonably happy, but it has always remained a mystery to the society belles, who were ready to fall into his arms at a word. It was tears (and not "ldle tears") that trapped him. One evening he called at his partner's house and found only the young lady at home. Very artfully she led the con ersation to her own utfairs, and told him that she was a perfect slave to her sister, tyrannized over and ill treated. If it was, she did not seem to know and that life had become such a burden to her that she should rid berself of it unless she could change her home. The visitor tried to comfort her, but in vain. Marriage was very far from his thoughts just then, and he had no bye to give anywhere. Niobe's tears fell faster and faster, and at last they came away. lu an hysterical torrent. Ilis ejaculations of sympathy were in vain, when she eried: "Oh, where shall I go? who will give me a home?" "I would if I dared offer it, poor girl," said the male hankering after love again. The sixth entertalment in the P. L. II. Comse was given last Monday evening by the Temple Quartette, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Humphrey-Allen, Soprano, Our concert goers evidently made the most of the line evening and favored the singers with a full louise. The programme em braved the following very pleasuret selections: Quintette, "Whence Art Thou," by Mrs. Ailen and Temple Quartette Chorus from "Les Enfants de Parls," for four unic voices, by Temple Quartette: Seema and Arla, from "Del Freischutz" by Mrs. Alien; Descriptive Song for baso, "The Storm What," by Mr. Ryder: Quartette, "Absence," and "Hunting Song," by the Temple Quartette. A du "Versatemi del veno," by Messrs Fitz (1st tenor) and Cook (baritone) was very time. A ballad entitled "The Star of Glengary," served to display Mr. Fess tage, and his encore selection was given with a deligistful effect. The very larmonlous quartette, "Beware, She's Foot ing Ther," (composed expressly for the Temple Quartette by Howard M. Dow,) elleited so much applianse that the quartette again appeared, this time representing "The Hoarse Singers," with Increased effect. Mrs. Allen's solo, "When the Heart is young," was also encored, After singing "Ave Maria" (from an impublished Mrs.) the Operatette by soc.

most lovely place, and with this falle frog wisdom of cided that it he would talk with his fellow-frogs intelligently he must make a pilgrinage to the favored city and see with his own eyes this bit of earthly Paradise. So he started off one fair spring morning, assuming all the dignity which his conduct demanded, and hopped oft at a brisk rate, and befue long came to the foot of a very high hill, open which he patiently tolded until he reached the top, and although very tired after so long a journey, he began to look about him with evident satisfaction, and was surprised to see another frog hop up from the other side of the hill. For a moment they looked at each other, and then bowed in time politicness, not needing a third party to effect an introduction. They were very sociable frogs indeed, and soon Frog No. 1 discovered that Frog No. 2 having beard truch of Frog No. 2 home, he had statted to see that with hir own eves. "Well," said once, "we are on this high hill which connainds a view of all the surrounding country, and can easily see from here each other's city; and as t am so tired t think it.

The one side or the other, claim the alleglance of every citizen, and every good citizen, who wishes well to his country and his fellows, aml is willing to do what he can for them, will find no difficulty in deciding where he should be found, and where his influence should be exerted. There is ultogether too much apathy in these things that concern so vitally all the best interests of the community, a want of impreciation of the tremendous results that are dependent upon these every day decisions. It surely cannot be that there is want of knowledge upou the subject, for the agitation of the past tilty years must have famillarized the minds of all with the malu facts bearing upon it; and, it may be, tha the matter has become so familiar, and the evils lucident to the use and traffic in alchoholic drinks, so often repeated that they have become an ulil story,

Dea. Elijah Shaw is erecting two buildings on vernor St, which he proposes to rent. Mr. Alongive away, as mobuly would have him for multing; but it would seem that we are approaching a point in the general depreciation which has sort in, in regard to the word recitation which has sort in, in regard to the word of the committed of the committed of the committee of the co gestions upon common every day matters, so common us to be often overlooked, may be permitted. And lirst, in the housebold, Is it absolutely essential that there should be wine for sauces, and cordinis for jellies MELIKOFF, and cakes? Is it really necessary that pies, to be good, must be made with on Taylor street, as a Mr. Arrow, and that he was a detective in pursuit of a "bird."

Mrs. Smith, as every douce woman would who reads her Bibbe, let him have her best room, for she thought that there were millions in it. When Mr. Arrow took his nice breakfast next morning, he said he came in to his nice warm dinner, he said he had been, and when he had finished it, he said he was going in pursuit of the bird agalu, and so this farce wint on for two nortal days; but Mrs.

Smith began to have her suspicions, and in these snspicions she was encouraged by her other boarders. She at last detay.

Ing the year, There might be found opportunities for distributing it somewhat, thereby making it easier to bear. Pupils have expect protuction is then harmless, to use, in its senson, sit the spirit of self-sac rifice, promote the general good? Mught not more barm come from their use for these purposes, thum possible good? And then again, is frequent use of alchobolic stimulants in the form of the bird agalu, and so this farce with the bird agalu, and so this farce wint on for two nortal days; but Mrs.

Smith began to have her suspicions, and in these sneplcions she was encouraged by her other boarders. She at last detay in the children will be promoted at the morning he schedy a promote at the monthly example, when something else, but not quite so handy, would do just as promote the general good?

For the Shoning Season examine the morning he schedy argument the potential promoted at the not quite so handy, would do just as promoted at the not quite so handy, would do just as promoted at the specific portant promoted at the not quite so handy, would do just as promoted at the specific portant promoted at the not promoted at the not quite so handy, would do just as promoted at the specific portant promoted at the not quite so handy, would do just as promoted at the notation promoted at the notation promoted at the not quite so handy, we use, or even cider? Is it true they the right thing to do, because the population of de well, the best course to take? If the good friends of temperance could know essary for business men, who must take their lunch, or dinner, away from home, to patronize a place where liqnors are sold, because the place is hanily and respectable(?) it being too much trouble to semel out a temperance place, and one, which, with the support of temperance men to which It is really entitled might set as good a table as the other is enabled to do with their support aided by the profits on the liqnor selling, forgetting that it is in just such places as these that drinking habits in the young are formed, and not in the lower and less respectable shops, forgetting, also, that it is the presence and patronage of temperance men that make their respectability, and that without such patronage they would not probably be able to live, the profits from the other class being insufficient? Suppose, also, that the friends of temperance should patronize in stores of any kind where Intoxicating liquors are sold, might not the dealers be com-pelled, for their own interest, to stop such sale? Suppose all temperance men should windraw their support New Road.

It is said that the County Commissioners have examined the proposed extension of Pearl street. South Braintree, toyoned the rairrand station to Mobile street, thence to Weymanth. This road of the proposed of the county Cou to Weymouth. This road, if built, will supply a long-teh want and will lay open many desirable building lots.

Accident.
On Suturday, about two o'clock in the afferuoon, the Brligewater train dashed wagon, and making havoc with the load of beef. The particulars, so far as we have been able to learn them, are that Mr. Thomas W. Sampson, who was in charge of the wagon, lead been out distributing when near to the crossing in have been have bad his filled occupied with matters connected with his business, when all at once, and whilst in this mood of forgetfulness he was startled hito a condition of conscionaness by the wild screech of the engine; but so near was he to the rallroad there seemed to be only one chance, if even that was left him, of saving himself and team. He at once leaped out of the wagon and sprang for the horse's head, and clutched the bridle with both hands in oriler to stop the animal, but he was dragged by the horse until his feet touched the ralls, and in order to save himself he let go his grasp, and the horse and wagon went on, and of course were caught by the engine, and tossed like a straw in the air. The horse and the two forward wheels of the wagon were dropped on one side of the track, and the body of the wagon on the other. The horse bad his two hind legs broken, and was almost disemboweled The news of the accident created onite an excitement, and many visited the scene of the disaster. The lesson for the public to learn by this accident is that as we have no less than six dangerous crossings all within a distance of two miles, there can lug, he and around our ylllage.

TAR WATER FOR INSECTS.

For the last five years I have not lost a cucumber or melon, vine or cabbage plant. Get a barrel, with a few gallons of gas tar in it; ponr water on the tar; always have it ready when needed, and when the bugs appear give them a liberal drink of the tar-water of them being served with a small lobfrom a garden sprinkler, or otherwise, and if the rain washes it aff and they return, repeat the dose. ONE CENT A PLATE.

"The cheapest dining room in the city 25 is the claim placarded on a house in Grand street, New York. The restaurant is a plain room of moderate size, furnished with common tables and large side-hoard. "We put cloths on the tables, when we opened a week the Hibernian, at last, "lolisters are ago, "said the elderly lady who, with not red until they are boiled." her son conducts the establishment, "but there was such a rush of boys, who were neither mannerly or neal, that we had to take them off. about, giving the following prices: A small cut of voltee or ten or coffee with sugar and milk, one cent; a cup of the ordinary size, two cents: a slice of corned beef one cent; locad and butter, one cent; soup, one cent; a baked or boiled potatoe, one cent; eabbage, one cent; baked beaus, one ceut; boiled or fried mush, one cent; oatmeal, one cent; boiled rice, one rent; a quarter of a pie, three cents. The quality of the food is excellent, but the one-cent portions are small, yet a fair appetite caa be appeased for five cents, and a ravenous one for ten. Everything is clean and the cooking good.

"Who supports this charity?" was usked of the woman.

"Charity!" she exclaimed, "why sir, this isn't a charitable Institution; le is a business emerprise, and I guess i is going to pay. The margin for profit is small, as you may imagine, but it will be enough to live on if the crowds come as they have been coming. We have to buy close and waste nothing but by careful management, there is profit on every cent's worth we sell.

HARLER'S MAGAZINE for December fully maintairs the leading poslition which the periodical holds, both as to literary and artistic excellence. Readers will first of all turn to Longfellow's poem, "Keramos," beautifully illustrated by Abey & Fredericks. While the so ject of this poem is one dear to the hearts of all brica-base hontes, the poet has transcended its more inhvious features, and given is not only a poem of nearvelina skill in realistic description, but also an imaginative work of the highest order. The Number opens with Million's "Hymn on the Nativity," with seven effective illustrations by Fredericks.

Mrs. STOPFORD contributes a paper, beautifully illustrated, on "Elizabethan and later English Furniture." Mr. WILLIAM II, RIDBERG contributes a paper on the "Metropolitan Newspaper," which will be universally popular. It is embelished with twenty-seven illustrations, including potraits of prominent New York editors.

"Many Leayas and few Grapes" is an Italian Christmas story, by Vigetsia M., Johnson, with two striking illustrations by Abbey.

This number is especially rich in fiction, and the editoria's summaries are as varied and entertaining as usual. HARLER'S MAGAZINE for December fall

This standard article is compound ed with the greatest care.

Its effects are as wonderful and as eatisfactory as ever.

It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes nll eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary giants to their normal vigor, preventing baidness, and making the hair grow thick and strong.

As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.

CONOVER AND PATTERSON. OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Our correspondent seeks to explain, by the laws o analogy, the causes of the present emergency i

Washington, Nov. 28th. The recent defection of Senators Connover and Patterson enables us to glance for a moment at the type of men whom they represent in the Senate. The storm which beat against the Republican shores for something more than four years and exhausted its force at Appomatax Court House, left some of the navigators stranded on the beach, politically and financially wrecked. Their fortunes, to say nothing of their sacred honor, had gone down in the midst of the furious conflict; their lufluence had departed with their right of franchise and nothing scemed left but a possible peaceful retreat in the forests of blivion. But the same storm which lisd wrecked the legitimate craft, in clearing away naturally brought to the surface ntity of driftwood, which adjusting a quantity of driftwood, which adjusting a rudder of more or less pretension, unfolded the flag of the dominant party and managed to drift into port. The Senate was certainly unfortunate in capturing the least staunch of these privateersmen. Of their origin, so far as most of them are concerned, rumor says little and history will say decidedly less. Some were stranded on the conquered territory, with no more of riches or fame than they started out with; others emigrated from northern homes to enter politics as a means of livelihood, and a small minority of na tives, noticing that the loaves and fishes were being passed around rather promisenously, saw no reason why they should not eat and be filled. The majority, however, were political adventurers-" Carpet baggers," If you will-for I see nothing partientarly opprobrious in the title, inasmuch as from Ciay and Webster to Sam Cox and Ben Hill, a prophet has no honor in the vicinity of his native hearthstone.

Commencing, then, with Arkansas, we find the political manistrom easting to the surface, in 1868, one Ben Rice, a nomlescript politician who entered the Senate for the short term, and Powell Clayton, an ex-Union officer, who defeated Sterling Price the Senate. at Pine Bliff in '04, had come to the fore as military governor, and went into the seat of Sebastian for the long term. Rice was a turbulent fellow at the best, whom his constituents repudiated at the earliest opportunity and who relapsed into obsenrity without leaving a ripple behind lilu to danote the place where he went down. Ciayton, who was a one-armed soldier, spent six years in Washington and jumped the town about a year ago to escape arrest by the police for an assault on his laudlord, whose countenance he had disligured with a whiskey bottle and contents. S. W. main until 1870, though a hard-working, practical man, is chiefly distinguished as women in Washington.

From Alabama came George Goldthwaite who was once Chief Justice of the State. and the rebei adjutant-general during the will predominate in the first two years, and every one who was present last seareign of the Confederacy. Goldthwaite was a native of Massachusetts and schoolthe Republican party and was rewarded each half year, one of a certain number with a seat in the Senate. Whatever abilities he may have once possessed, his six years in the upper house were spent in a state of physical and mental imbecility. He belonged to neither one party or the are number consideration, but probably no other; never opened his mouth, except to decision will be reached until the Norfolk vote, during the whole period, and leaving the seat on the ath of last March, his pub- Superintendenta receives the report of its lic services, so far as the Senate is curecerned, may be represented by a long- for Grammar and Primary Schools. Osborne and Gilbert from Florida, came as near being political nonentities as possible. Conover, whose party treason has brought him bis first and only prominouce is a Jerseyman by birth, served in the Union army during the war as Surgeon, and having been ordered to Florida in 1806, he resigned his commission and entered politics; was appointed State Treasurer and later became Speaker of the Fiorida House of Representatives, from whence he came to the Senate in 1873 .-Dr. Conover is a plain, matter-of-fact gentleman, of no decided opinions, inclined to vaccillate, chary of language, and has not been on his feet more than once or twice during his five years service. He has always been considered a strong partizau, and the reason for his defection is hased on mere conjecture.

On the 24th June, 1868, Arkansas, Alabama, the two Carolinas, Georgia and Louislana, were re-admitted to the Uulon. Georgia presented Joshua Hill, a gentuine Union man, but of a harmiess and indefinite nature, as a peace offering, but supplied his place by General John B. Gordon at the earliest opportunity. Senator Norwood, whom Ben Hill succeeded, was as utterly impractical a public man as could be found in searching the state, and so little of a politician that with a majority of the Legislature he suffered Hill, with all his unpopularity, to eircumvent him and who the race. Louislanahas been so promluently before the public since the war that her ordinarily complex status as a political unit is as confusing as her population is volatile. However, between Ray and West, her reconstruction Senators, Pinchback, Kellogg, Eastis, McEnery and Spolford, et ounes, there isn't the value of a toss up. They are ailens, and have managed between them to take up the majority of the time of the Senate for the past ten years. Texas contributed John W. Flanagan, who lagged superfluous on the stage, found, fretted and fussed for six weary years, when his friends took compassion on the nation and buried him quietly. Morgan C. Hamliton, the brother of Gov. "Jack," by far the ablest Texan since Houston, aurprised no one so much as idmself when he reached the Senate, and although keen, scheming and conservative, he accomplished eight years of public service in most masterly luactivity. Gen. Maxey and Gov. Coke, who have succeeded the two latter, make up la bombast and racket what they lack in wisdom and statesman-

Mississippi has been itd more fortunate then her sisters. Alcorn was a statesman of about the ordinary caliber of a barroom politican, tricky, recreant, and considerable of a demagnic. Ames, a political never of no particular ability, who married into more fame than he ever conquered; Pease an absolute minentity Revels, who was made the tool of attern. ulous politicians, but preserved his honr, and maintained a dignity that no one expected from him; and finally, Bruce, by ing olds the choica member of the quin tette, honest, upright and zealous to advance the interests of a state that no longr permits the existence in open day-light f the party that sent him to the Senate. The only advantage that Lamar has over he lot, in my opinion is the fact of his ably representing a constituency unani-mously Democratic.

SOUTH CAROLINA STATESMEN. Massachusetts, not content with sending Goldthwaite into the Senate from Alabama, followed up her advantage by putting R. K. Scott in the executive chair of South Carolina, succeeded him by Gen. Chamberlain, and transfermed Fred'k A. Sawyer from a pedagogue in Charleston to a pupil in the Senate at Washington. Sawyer, it must be confessed, was as able as he was apt. He was an excellent lustructor of youth and found little difficulty in becoming an able-teacher of men. From the Senate he entered the Treasury as assistant secretary to Boutweil, and maintained an excellent reputation for integrity and ability. But, and to relate, from a political and public life reputable he graduated iuto a civil and private life inglarious. He hovers at present between the gin-mili and gambling dens of Washington, with an occasional appearance before the Police Court. John J. Patterson is a Penusyivanlan, who emigrated to South Carolina In ISER, and succeeded Sawyer in 1873. He had been an editor in his native state, and later he was engaged in railroading and banking sufficiently long to enable him to acquire a competency. He is now undergoing trial before the District Courts upon charges brought hy the Hampton government, and it is thought that his presen action is closely connected with a promised withdrawal of the charges.

I have left myself no room for North Carolina or Virginia, nor to glance into the House, which partook to an even great er extent in the political demoralization succeeding the war. All this is a sad commentary on the possibilties, rather than the workings of republican institutions. I have stated little beyond facts in this harried resume of the unpleasant side of politics; have endeavored to nothing yer, perhaps he will make a doctor. extenuate or aught set down in malice; yet I trust it may ald in a solution of the causes which have operated to bring about the present condition of things, and made the surrender of these two political adventurers the absorbing question of the honr. I cannot entirely repuliate the charges of bargain and sale so universally brought against them, but consider it more th outgrowth of the unfortunate condition of affairs which enabled such men to reac

Robert Laird Collier.

Owing to the second rain atom of last Monday, Robert Laird Collier had but a very small andience at his lecture in the P. L. C. Courso. The subject of his discourse was "The Personality of a Poet;" the poet being Giver Goldsmith, who was born in a homote part of Ireland, the sixth son of a poor Irish Protestant clergyman, and was reared and lived in a sea of trouble. He was short, ciuinsy, and maturise. He was short, ciuinsy, and maturise. aily ugly, which was greatly increased by evere attack from small-pox, from which e bad suffered whan young. His first

His first college clays were spent at Trinity, where he was ointed at as a fright in the play-ground, and a dunce in the school-room. Witless hough he seemed, he was at times very witty. An incident is related of him which bears out this assertion. He was at an evening party at his uncie's where a waggish young fellow played the fildle for the lancers. Moved by the force of impulse, he rushed into the centre, between the dances, and commenced a hornpipe. Pointing to the ugiy dancer, the fiddler sx-

Goldsmith was very generous. Not satistled with giving away part of hia small wardrohe, he gives even his bed clothes and also gave to the poor money which should have gona to his many creditors. After leaving Trinity, his unclo presented bim, very truch against his wishes, to the bishop, to be a minister, but his scarlet breeches did not suit the worthy dlvine, and, to Oliver's great joy, he was refused. Goldsmith's "Good Natured Mau" was produced at Covent Garden, brought ilm lu a few pounds, but never was a great success. Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Mass., they will avail themselves of them. No one of true heart and earnest purpose could fail to be enefitted in listening to such words as were uttered here. The afternoon session was held in Faxor tiall, (a hall devoted to total abstinence, and which bears the name of a man who is well known as a work er and benefactor in the cause.) Reports were give frum different Unions of Norfolk County. Mrs. Gifford, of Worcester, whose motherly face sheate in Quaker white, carried a blessing in its very look related a few facts in regard to their work in Wor ester. She said that two or three meetings week, besides the Sabbath Gospel Temperand Meeting, were held by the Union or Reform Clut that when the Club started, the Union decided tha every Club meeting should be opened with reading of the Bible, singing and prayer; that at first ther was opposition, but the Union was firm and the Club saw that their aid was generous and needful, so they yielded to the right. Men of busines joined the Club, and they had never called upon jutside help. These men had never before spoker n public, but she had never heard anywhere mnre lective speeches. Every week their meetings were so full the largest Hall or Church would no nmodate them. They had just formed a Young Woman's Temperance Union, which gave great inise, and the children were also being orga-

He knows hoth he has right to buy at the greatest advantage what he needs, with the result of that labor. A man that buys it with the result of that labor. A man that buys iy with the rest of mankind. They were neither affected with hydrophobia or the ner comes not only very close to the man he buys from, but also very and much closer to the principle by which he is made to pay so much for the goods which he is made purchases. The principle by which profits are determined, and upon which they are based, is authoritative, it is recognised by every one, but it is authoritative into obligatory as much with the seller, as with the buyer. The seller is rightsously entitled to a legitimate profit on the goods he sells, as more, no less, and the buyer is bound, honestly bound, to pay that good it, no less, no more. The principles which should govern all properly conducted business are just as potent and inflexible as are the principles of right and wrong, or the laws of the physical universe. To take advantage of a man there is not only and the laws of the physical universe. To take advantage of a man there is not only and the laws of the physical universe. > DUTIES OF THE HOUR. NUMBER VI.

Another duty none the less imporant because addreseed to a class, and none the less effective because per formed by a part of the community. that of lie members and friende to place the church in its true position upon this all important subject of Temperance. No class of people have so much at stake, for it is one of their fundamental principles. None are under such obligations, because they profess, in this, as in other matters, to live upon a higher plane and to be actuated by higher motivee than others.-Their claims are great, their influence s great, and if their practice but accords with their profession in this matter, none can accomplish so much to ward the common end.

They work with different instruments, through different channels, and upon another kind of material, and none the less efficient because they try to luftuence the luner man, instead of striving to force results from the outside. They profess to accomplish their work by planting the right seeds which germinate in the heart, and carefully cultivated, produce the desired fruit by starting good impulses in the right direction, which of themselves shall necomplish the purpose intended. They profess to cleanse the stream by purilying the fountain, rather than by fiftering the stream itself. They work rather by utoral means than by physieal, to bring about a powerful result; for if the heart be right, what proceeds from it must needs be right. If the impulses that urge to a certain course of conduct be pure, the result will be pretty sure to be good. Hence the value and the importance of the position the church occupies in the community, and its ability to powerfully exert its instrumence upon any given question. It is the self-appointed champion of all right moral movements, and should be forement in the passecution of all right upon them; but the members of the church are human and fallible, and liable to, and human and fallible, and liable to, and do make mistakes. They sometimes get into the grong place, and when they are thus situated, from the very prominence of their professions, they do much more harm than those occupying much more name those occupying precisely the same position, but making an profession of better things.

Is the title of a new paper published in New York, to be devoted to full discussion of the great lesues of the hour, such as the relations between productive industry and bonded debt and the social and political economies belonging thereto. It is free from party bias, and its sole purpose will be a diligent search for light and touth in the prosecution of these inquirles, knowlug no nobler end than the prosperity of the American people. It is vigorously conducted, and will be especially valuable to all who rre interested in the discussion of these great questions. $2.00 sent to the address of the paper, Box 3009, New York city, will seeare it for a year. This Serseparilla is a combination of rogetable alteratives—Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock—with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure. Its ingredients are so skilfully combined, that the full alterative effect of each is assured and while it is a smalled. each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruptions which develop into loathsome disease. The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it, prove their experience of its nsefulness.

Certificates attesting its virtues have accumulated, and are constantly being received, and as many of these cases are publicly known, they furnish convincing evidence of the superiority of this Sarsaparilla over every other alterative medicine. So generally is its superiority to any other medicine known, that we need do no more than to assure the public that the best qualities it has ever possessed are strictly maintained.
